1. On instructions, since the petitioner has a remedy of filing a statutory appeal available, we deem it appropriate to permit the petitioner to withdraw the present petition as prayed with liberty to file an appeal questioning the impugned order.
2. Needless to clarify that this Court has not gone into the merits of this case.
3. Time taken in prosecuting the present petition is to be taken into account in the matter of reckoning the limitation.
4. The present petition, along with pending applications, if any, stands dismissed as withdrawn with liberty as prayed for.
